

GALESVILLE TROUT ARE FEAST FOR EYE NOT ONE'S STOMACH

Two of Prized Beauties Caught by Unknown La Crosse Man Die When Thrown Back

TROUT in the ponds in High Cliff park, Galesville, are to look at, intended as a feast for the eye, not the stomach, according to Henry Schurz, member of the La Crosse County Conservation club, ardent fisherman and believer in the protection of fish and game.

Sunday an unidentified La Crosse man was fishing in the ponds. He caught two trout. A Galesville boy saw him putting the fish in his pocket and informed the angler that the trout in the ponds were not supposed to be fished for, that they were show purposes only. The boy told the man that unless he put the trout back he would complain to the game warden at Galesville. The man put the trout back in the pond.

Some time later in the afternoon Mr. Schurz, who also was in Galesville, and Harry Sturdevant, president of the Galesville Rod and Gun club, a fish and game conservation body, went to the ponds. They saw the two trout dead at the bottom of the pond. They fished them out and buried them.

Hence the warning against fishing trout in the ponds, from Mr. Schurz and Mr. Sturdevant.

CAPTURING ODOR OF BLOSSOMS

Distillation is the means most generally made use of in recovering the odor of flowers for the purpose of making perfume, an industry said to be older than history and still being improved by the perfection of apparatus. But there are essences too delicate to survive heat and the passage through still and water; these are captured by spreading the fresh blooms on trays lined with fats or oils, in which the drying flowers slowly breathe their fragrance. In yet another device the flowers are steeped in some selective solvent.

The chemist is now engaged in disentangling the odorous constituents from these costly substances and has succeeded in many cases in making quantitative determinations of the individual compounds contained in a natural perfume.

He has gone still further and has produced some of them by artificial synthesis or by separation from less costly materials. It is true that the subtleties of the natural perfumes have still baffled his art. But a great and legitimate industry has arisen in the production of cheap and tolerable substitutes for natural scents with a profitable although less legitimate side line of scientific adulteration.

A CENTURY-OLD LUCK TRINKET

Most famous of all stage muscans is a certain silver brooch that has been carried on first nights by a long line of famous actors and actresses.

It is a Stuart heirloom, the gift of Boucicault's friend, Charles to Flora Macdonald, and was first worn on the stage by Miss Siddons, and afterwards by Edmund Kean when he made his first great success in the part of Shylock at Drury Lane more than a century ago.

Its next wearer of note was Samuel Phelps when he made his debut—also as Shylock—in London, in 1837.

In later days Tree pinned his faith to the luck-bringing brooch, which he wore on several famous first nights. Marie Lohr carried it through her memorable rendering of "L'Arlésienne." Doris Keane wore it in "Romance," and it graced Gladys Cooper's first night in "The Secret Agent."

The explanation given to account for this solitary lapse is that the trinket's powers are personal to the wearer.

Popcorn in the Making

Corn popping is an explosion due to the expansion, under pressure, of moisture contained in the starch grains. Until the explosion takes place this force is contained by the cellulosic matrix in which the starch grains are imbedded. As a result of popping, there is a hydrolysis of much of the starch, a loss of moisture, and the obliteration of all cellular structure in the endosperm.

On His Way—Up

Whereas, Doctor Edward A. Fitzpatrick has acted as secretary of the State Board of Education continuously since January, 1919, his annual election to this position having always been by the unanimous vote of the board under suspension of his rules and; Whereas, the members of the board feel that his conspicuously brilliant service as its secretary during this period demands that an expression of its appreciation of his service to the cause of education in the state of Wisconsin be spread upon its records at this time.

Therefore be it resolved: That the State Board of Education gratefully acknowledges to Doctor Edward A. Fitzpatrick its great indebtedness to him because everything worth while accomplished by the board during the period of his service was due to his capable direction and inspiring leadership. He brought to his duties profound scholarship, high ideals of educational service, comprehension of the kinship which exists between democracy and education together with very definite ideas for making them know and serve each other better; capacity to handle details swiftly and surely; ability to appraise social tendencies with accuracy; genius for organization; devotion to the unification of all our agencies of education as a means to the end of the great commonwealth for which men have dreamed and died but scarcely dared to hope; and a dauntless courage that moved him to turn the light of truth upon educational falsehood and error wherever found; and while acknowledging these qualities of mind and heart the members of the board desire to bear witness to the fact that he has at all times treated them with uniform and unfailing courtesy and consideration and that their relations with him have at all times been most satisfactory and happy and the members of the board contemplate the severance of these relations with feelings of deep regret.

The last act of the Wisconsin state board of education, which under sentence of the state legislature ceases to exist July 1, was to pass the above resolution by unanimous vote.

The legislature, which knew Major Fitzpatrick only as a department head to whom it could have access when it chose, did not compliment him when it wiped out the board of which he was the executive secretary, for no other purpose than to save the paltry cost of its operation. Coming from a legislature whose entire attitude on education has been extremely reactionary, the act was not surprising. Had this repealer stood alone, it might have been received with a sense of shock, but taken in conjunction with other evidences of the lack of educational vision which it connotes, the state received it with a casual shrug, as one usually receives natural consequences of known conditions.

And so we do not go to the legislature for an estimate of Major Fitzpatrick, but turn rather with pleasure to the spontaneous word of those with whom he had worked and whose intimacy he had enjoyed from year to year. One does not often see a finer tribute. And, as we know Major Fitzpatrick, one does not often find a truer. Only men who have worked with him, faced problems with him, could so naturally and accurately have touched the outstanding qualities which are prophetic of big achievements.

What Major Fitzpatrick will do is still problematical. Probably he is in doubt himself. But of one thing we are certain. The thing he finally puts his hand to will be worth while. Thrown suddenly off the track which he was pursuing to an important destination, he may save the moment by picking up odd jobs, but even these will be important. And soon, when he recovers his bearings, he will seek some great human service and undertake its performance. Perhaps it is too much to hope that this task will fall within Wisconsin's borders. Most of the honor which this prophet possesses is not in his own country. New York and California have assayed his mettle better than we.

States where factionalism runs high usually are states of advanced progress on the side of political freedom. But the very intensity of their politics weighs against the efforts of those who will not discount the value of the thing to be achieved in the interest of political success either of individual or of faction. To stay long, the public servant must play the political game, and often the better he plays the political game, the poorer the service he is able to render. It was Major Fitzpatrick's fault that he would not alter a decimal or shade a color for the accommodation of those seeking political results. A true scientist, he found the fact and dropped his anchor there, to hold until torn away by some political storm.

It is in his moment of temporary defeat that Major Fitzpatrick looms largest. He is not disgruntled. He does not permit himself to resent what he knows to be the consequences of misinterpretation and misunderstanding. He is content to leave the verdict to history. The past is over his shoulder. He looks forward, the smile of optimism and confidence unchanged. A fine figure—a touch of the poet, much of the idealist, and everything of the practical scholar, his eyes seek the lifting future. Not to the path of least resistance, but to the rough ascending trail, he turns his steps. Wisconsin, for the moment at least, has lost the service of a worthwhile man, who does only worthwhile things. Perhaps, one day, Wisconsin will consider it worth while to recall him to the service of the Badger state. That, should it occur, would be in a truly progressive day.

Stung!

UNTIL the fans are properly milked there will be much talk of Tom Gibbons as a formidable contender for Jack Dempsey's fistic title. In the ring Jack may feel him out a little. But when the "gate" is satisfied and delay's concession to an appearance of decency is appeased, the patent-leather ship builder will perfunctorily "knock his can off."

Anyway, that is a casual observer's opinion of the big mill. A fight fan is born every minute, and promoters need the dough. The Shelby encounter is now touted as the big thing. The minute it is over, the "dope" will be that it was only a preliminary, an eliminating process to clear the way for the real championship fight when Jess Willard unlimbers his famous uppercut in the squared arena. Then they'll sing the same old song. Jack's stomach is bad. He is over-trained. Jess looks the pink of condition and knocks out a dozen sparring partners a day. And then—

Poor Jess! Poor old Jess! Knocked for a row of solar systems for a measley hundred thousand grand! It's a dog's life!

WHEN newspapers print editorials about sleep, food, general health and so on, may be you wonder what such abstract subjects have to do with today's news. The answer is that these subjects are ALWAYS news, because they are the fundamentals of life. Most of the world's problems (which create today's news) are matters of health and spiritual daze. A full stomach, a good digestion and plenty of refreshing sleep will take the sting out of almost any kind of trouble-maker. Murder often is a matter of blood pressure.

Love and Alice May

Alice saw him coming down the platform toward her. She would have known him anywhere, the way he carried his dark head, the humorous glint in his brown eyes, the sudden smile that showed his very white teeth.

She wondered whether she could avoid him.

"Why, Alice May! I haven't seen you for a blue moon!" he cried, dropping his bag and taking her little gloved hand in his.

"A blue moon four years old," she answered.

Then she could have bitten out her tongue for admitting it.

"What are you doing here?" Billy Rogers asked with that engaging way of his.

"I live here now."

"Oh, yes. You're married, of course?"

"Yes," she answered. Crimson swept over her cheeks.

In that moment she had covered over all the hurt of four years of remembrance with a "yes." Somehow she could not have Billy pity her, have him think that she still remembered.

"And how is your wife?" Alice May asked.

"Oh, very well," Billy answered abruptly.

He turned to her with his old eager way.

"I want to hear all about you. I've got to wait here for two hours for the next train. You couldn't—you would not—that is, would you have tea with me?"

"My—my husband is very broad-minded, but what about your wife?" Alice asked quickly.

"Oh, my wife's heard all about you. She'll be glad," he answered.

They walked up the main street together. Alice hot and cold in turns at the monotony of the lie she had told. And yet, the moment it had seemed the only way to save her pride the only way to be on equal terms with Billy again.

For she wanted to hear about him, what he did, what he thought, what he felt. Surely it would be no disloyalty to the woman Billy loved—his wife—to spend just two hours with him on their old terms of comradeship and understanding.

Alice looked up at him shyly. How good he was to look at! She liked the seriousness of those brown eyes, the clean-cut mouth the brown cheeks, even the way his hair grew.

He smiled down at her suddenly.

"Where are you taking me, Alice May?"

"Here," she said.

"Here," was a tea shop with crisply fresh dotted swiss curtains at the window, and once they had pushed open the door Billy cried, "How jolly!"

It had a wide, white fireplace with shining andirons, oval rag rugs, a spinning wheel and round tables with a lot of primroses or wild violets centering each.

They chose a table by the window and Alice watched Billy shrug out of his coat with that old familiar gesture and fling himself down in the settle beside her.

"I believe," he said with that glint of humor in his eyes, "that you brought me here because you knew how becoming it was to you!"

It was becoming to Alice. The neutral colored walls, the pleasant old-time furniture, seemed to be her background. She was not exactly pretty, but something more than pretty.

"Alice May," Billy said thoughtfully, when their tea and crumpets and marmalade had been brought and Alice poured with that dainty precision of hers, "I want to know all about that house of yours and those chubby-cheeked children!"

She blushed again.

"Yes, two lumps; how did you remember? I know you have sunny rooms and that flowered stuff beside the windows—and a piano overflowing with music and flowers everywhere—now, haven't you? And two rosy youngsters in what-do-you-call 'em?"

"I'll tell you all about that," she said quickly, "but first I want to know all about you! How's your work and—and your wife?"

"Oh, my work?" his eyes lighted up. "I'm going down to Mexico shortly. Think of it, Alice May—the adventure—putting a new bridge across the wilderness. A company's sending me down there, but it's at my own risk. I'm keen about it!"

He stopped. "There, I'm boring you to death."

"And your wife?" Alice persisted. He stirred his tea absently and forgot to drink it. Alice knew all at once that he wasn't happy, that this woman who had married him was not the woman for him. She hated her in that moment.

She thought suddenly of her friendship and Billy's. They had walked and skated, danced and teased each other. They had exchanged books and opinions; Alice had made chafing-dish suppers and Billy had brought her ribbon-looped boxes of candies. Yet strangely enough they had never verged on love making.

Alice knew she could never forget—as long as she lived—the night Billy had told her he was being sent to Alaska.

"Think of the adventure of it, Alice May!"

But she had only thought of the loneliness of it.

She had smiled to him bravely enough, told him how glad she was—until she had seen his train pull out of the station. And his letters that had begun so lengthily and finally stopped altogether. And—then she had heard he was married.

"What are you thinking of, Alice May?" Billy asked, breaking into her thoughts.

"I'm thinking," said Alice softly, "that if you're going to get that train you'd better begin to go for it!"

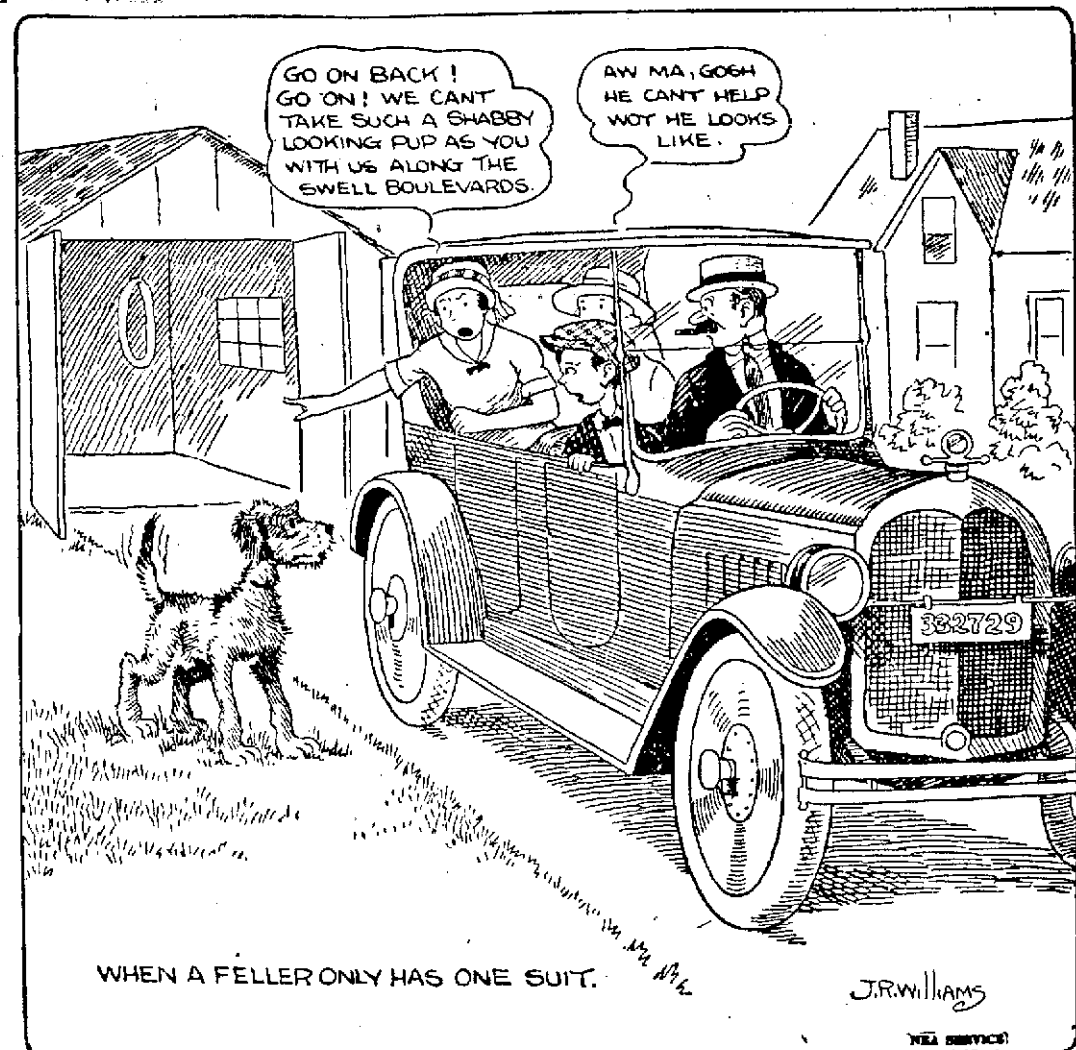

"And you haven't told me about your husband and those two kids?" he said a little wistfully.

"Would you really like to know?" she asked.

"I'd like to know anything about you," he answered.

His voice sent her heart beat hurrying. She stood up and gathered up her gloves. The waitress, coming to

GREEN BAY REAL ESTATE MEN LOSE STATE LICENSES

MADISON, Wis.—The Wisconsin real estate brokers board announced Monday the issuance of orders revoking the licenses of brokers of Daniel Gaffney and the Fox River Land and Loan company, a corporation, both leading brokers of Green Bay, Wisconsin.

The case is of unusual interest, the board said, because it involves the responsibilities imposed by the multiple listing system which has been adopted by many real estate boards in the state. Both the Fox River Land and Loan company and Daniel Gaffney are members of the Green Bay real estate board.

The board found that under the multiple listing contracts of the Green Bay real estate board entered into in behalf of its members by the Fox River Land and Loan company with a Mr. Felix La Violette, Dan Gaffney became an agent of La Violette as well as the Fox River Land and Loan company and as such was bound to disclose all knowledge that he might have in regard to the property to La Violette and that Gaffney was not in a position to use such knowledge to his own profit and benefit.

Convention Over La Crosse Woman Receives Office

Mrs. A. G. Solie, 1499 Johnson street, was elected Outing Guard of the Grand Lodge of the Daughters of Norway at the final meeting of their convention on Saturday. Mrs. Solie is secretary of the local lodge and the only woman from La Crosse to receive an office in the Grand Lodge. The other officers elected follow:

President, Mrs. Wetteland, Minneapolis; vice president, Dr. Laura Bretager, St. Paul; secretary, Mrs. Addusta Swan, Minneapolis; trustee, Dr. Ackerman, Chicago.

Madison has been selected as the meeting place for the next convention which will be held in 1925. The Daughters of Norway were so impressed with the beauty of this state that they decided to hold two successive conventions in Wisconsin. This is very unusual as the honor is usually passed from state to state.

MARRIAGE SUCCESS OR FAILURE? FAMOUS OPERA SINGER'S OPINION

MADAME FRANCES ALDA. NEW YORK.—Madame is just like everything else in life, you get out of it what you put in, and no more, according to Madame Alda.

She is one of the leading sopranos of the Metropolitan Opera and the wife of Giorgio Gasti-Casazza, the famous impresario. Her artistic career and that of her husband have been closely linked, and their home life has been most happy and harmonious.

If any phase of the marriage relation is not on the 40-50 basis, counting one to carry more than his share of the burden while the other shrugs her shoulders, there cannot be real happiness, and the break will come, whether it destroys the home entirely or allows the shell to remain without the soul," she explains.

She believes that the growing economic independence of women has changed for the better, their attitude toward marriage placing them in a position to command the respect and consideration which should always have been theirs, but unfortunately has not.

Woman's Place

"But to say a woman's place is in the home is absurd," she goes on. "The place is anywhere that provides her with the greatest opportunity for self-expression."

Jealousy an Evil

"The occupation of either party in the marriage contract should have nothing to do with the success of it," she said, "and if a man and his wife are partners in business or are in the same profession, there is no logical reason for antagonism. But I know of cases where jealousy, and only professional jealousy, has destroyed romance."

Mme. Alda considers early marriage an important factor contributing to domestic success.

"When people are in that flexible state of mind that goes with youth," she concludes, "they adjust themselves more readily to new conditions and the natural give and take so necessary to happiness."

KEEP HANDS SOFT

Washing your hands in milk or buttermilk each evening is one way to keep the devastating effects of housework from showing on them.

FRUIT JARS

Before using fruit jars that have been standing around empty, sterilize them thoroughly by boiling in soda water.

The combination of black and gray is frequently noted on fashionable women and is not nearly so drab as small handkerchiefs rather than in large P. sounds.

BATHING SCARF

A novel accessory for the bathing outfit is a wide scarf of rubber, heavily fringed and applied with futuristic designs in riotous shades of red, yellow and green.

For sport wear there are most attractive suits of light suede. Knitted dresses are also in demand and red shoes are almost the rule.

Fighting Blood, by H. C. Witwer (G. P. Putnam's Sons).

Adapted of box fighting—and the subject seems to be a timely one in Chicago at the moment—fans will enjoy Witwer's "Fighting Blood." Mr. Witwer gained a large following through his short stories in the Saturday Evening Post. Then "The Leather Pushers" was filmed. And now Mr. Witwer is writing novels all about the prize ring, its occupants and followers.

There is verve to this writing; action a-plenty fills the pages and Gale Galen, our hero, possesses the high ideals of manly sport and the good taste in picking a girl which gratifies him for the role.

Even though fights are to be forbidden in the future one may take a ring-side seat at "Fighting Blood," and indulge in legitimate thrills.

WEEKLY BOOK REVIEW

The Man From Maine, by Edward K. Bok (Charles Scribner's Sons).

This account of the life of Cyrus H. K. Curtis, written by his son-in-law, might be called the epic of American youth, the dream of American boyhood come true. For Mr. Curtis, starting with a capital of three cents and working in the face of difficulties and disappointments, has amassed a tremendous fortune. Having sold newspapers on the streets, he now owns them and houses them in fabulously expensive buildings. All this he has done without once making a compromise with his conscience.

It is a record of tremendous achievement by a man who might stand for ideal if one is willing to accept the copybook standard. He was ambitious, unassuming, industrious. He kept faith; he paid his debts and he got there just the same. Mothers, do not fail to put this volume into the hands of your growing boys.

Quite aside from the subject matter you have the book's claim to fame. This editor edits himself, producing a style of perfect simplicity devoid of unnecessary embellishment, quickly moving, readable. His autobiography, "The Americanization of Edward Bok," might be characterized as a temporary classic. His "Man From Maine" will join the same category.

Anthony John, by Jerome K. Jerome (David Allen and Co.).

Mr. Jerome has a knack of putting Christian teachings into popular form of making the precept to "love thy neighbor as thyself" appear as a possible working basis for modern life. George Jean Nathan, of the unsparring pen, stigmatizes such writings as sentimentalism, but it is true that they seldom fail to get across to the public and it is on just such stories as "Anthony John" and its predecessor, "The Sorcerer in the House," that Mr. Jerome has established a dividend paying reputation.

The plot of "Anthony John" starts in the slums, boasts him to the pinnacle of social and financial achievement and then returns him, though, to speak accurately, he voluntarily returns himself, to the slum from which he came. Having tasted the fruits of success he finds them bitter because they are not shared by all mankind.

So, in a modified fashion, he follows the injunction to give all to the poor, giving also himself as an example of how to live. It is a plot which must fail to convince the majority of readers but, on the other hand, there is a simple purity about the idea which will appeal to our secret superstition that the good man is the happy one.

Mix one cup celery cut crosswise into thin slices with one cup cold boiled ham cut into dice and one apple cut into very small thin pieces. Make a dressing of six tablespoons oil, two tablespoons vinegar, one teaspoon tarragon vinegar, one-half teaspoon mustard, one-half teaspoon salt, one tea spoon chopped onion and one eighth teaspoon black pepper.

Mix a little of the dressing with the celery, ham and apple. Cut three cold boiled beets and three cold boiled potatoes into thin slices and dress each with the dressing.

At serving time, mix two cups shredded lettuce, romaine or endive, with the celery, ham and apple mixture.

Turn into a salad bowl, or onto a platter, cover with one-half cup mayonnaise and surround the salad with alternating slices of potato and beets.

Literary Briefs

"The Psychology of Golf," by Leslie Schorn (Small, Maynard) is a handy little book, full of advice for the beginner in golf or for the seasoned veteran—Mr. Schorn feels there is no one past needing a cheering word, he goes into all that business of keeping the eye on the ball, the lure of the long drive, the psychology of match plays and he tells a lot of things that everybody does which he shouldn't do. It is a readable sort of book and behind it lies that assurance that golf is probably the best training for the mental and physical balance of man that is to be found.

There is a lively sort of story of the business world by Clyde Perrin called "The Thunderbolt" (A. C. McClurg) which shows how a man who was a perfect failure turned his talents to good account and became a perfect success. All apparent by that he needed to bring about the change in himself was a great deal of self-confidence and, once having acquired that, he set about conquering the world. It is not as improbable as it sounds and makes highly entertaining reading.

John Galsworthy has written a short book which we must remind ourselves is pure satire, if it would make head or tail of its extravaganzas. It is the story of one Mr. Laverdore, noble-spirited, simple-minded Englishman who is slightly deranged from reading newspaper leaders and the attentions of statesmen on War and Peace, an insanity which cannot but arouse our sympathy. His adventures are amusing to a certain extent—and are, of course, charmingly told. Mr. Laverdore's dilemma is called "The

McCAULEY HURLS HIS THIRD NO HIT NO RUN GAME ON SUNDAY

RE-VAMPED WABASH SCREEN DOORS ARE HUMBLING, 2 TO 0

Montague Hurler Principal in First No Hit, No Run Game at Copeland

SIXTEEN VISITORS BANISHED THROUGH STRIKEOUT ROUTE

Gill, of West Salem, Pitches Excellent Ball

FANS who forsook the exhibition at Copeland park Sunday afternoon on the pretense that it would be a repeat of Sunday's ragged affair must be kidding themselves today for the absence lost out on casting their shutters on the first no hit, no run game ever pitched on the home diamond.

Third Sensational Exhibition

"Spot" McCauley, hero of two other no hit, no run games, took the opportunity to mark up his third Sunday afternoon against the Wabash Screen Doors of Minneapolis. The final reckoning was 2 to 0. Four passes and a hit batsman prevented a perfect game.

The two previous outstanding performances in McCauley's career fell in the year 1921. In July of that year when pitching for Kanawha, Iowa, he turned in a perfect game against Hamilton in a county fair exhibition at Marion, 1 to 0. Not a batsman reached first base. The other was in June of the same year, when he defeated the U. S. Gypsum company when pitching for Algona. The score was 1 to 0, two passes and an error naming it from being a perfect game.

Strikes Out 16

To the brilliant performance of a no hit, no run game Sunday, and sixteen strikeouts and four assists and you have more important ingredients which helped to place Mac in the light of an idol with La Crosse baseball fans, yesterday. Mac's

WALLIE'S CAP AFIRE

A smudge in the hair and of Wallie Montague's big black roadster attracted some attention of baseball fans as it moved away from the park after the game Sunday. It was believed that a pitched cigar was dropped in the rumble seat compartment, and started to smolder during the game. The fire extinguisher was used, and everything seemed alright, when after an hour the smudge broke out again. Some damage was reported.

ended at least one strikeout in every inning getting three in the seventh alone. Thirty men bared him at the rubber, only two of which reached second base. The single second base in the second inning on a sacrifice by Simpson after he had been issued a pass. Lane stealing second in the eighth inning after hit by a pitched ball. In only four innings were there more than three men to come up.

Inning after inning, Mac saturated to the bill with a determination that spoiled victory as each succeeding batsman was banished, hitless.

Team mates behind McCauley turned in a perfect game with the exception of a boot by Franklin in the sixth when he let Quigley reach first base after Mac had struck him out. The error did not prove to be serious, for he was later caught napping off the sack by Mac in a lightning tag to first.

Visitors Re-vamped

The re-vamped Wabash club was an entirely different organization than that which was defeated 14 to 0 on the previous day. The lineup was re-arranged to good advantage and had two errors, in contrast to eleven on Saturday, together with brilliant fielding, took the dark brown taste away from local fans yesterday. There, in center field, took his five chances without a bobbie and looked like a veteran as he doctored all over the lot for his patrons. The visitors had two double plays, Quigley to Carter to Jansen, and Gill to Carter to Jansen.

Howard Gill, West Salem hurler was another big factor which contributed to making the affair interesting. Gill experienced only one bad inning, the second, in which he let two runners reach first base, and the two scored in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Grodzki, Franklin and B. Anzell, each connected for two apiece, the odd smash going to Manager Collins. All seven hits were singles.

GIANTS SAFELY EMBEDDED IN FIRST PLACE AS SIXTH GAME IN ROW IS TURNED IN SUNDAY

CHICAGO, Ill.—By the Associated Press.—To a safe margin in first place the New York Giants have returned. They won their sixth consecutive game Sunday, six to three, making it three straight from the Braves. Previously they had won three straight from St. Louis, Pittsburgh also won over St. Louis, six to four, but it seems as though the Pirates are getting farther from the Reds than they are keeping after the world's champions.

Chicago's steady playing is less normal. The Cubs got near to the leads by giving Adolph Luque, the Havana twirler, his second defeat of the season. Grover Alexander opposed him and allowed only three hits, the score was two to nothing.

Brooklyn fattened on Philadelphia, 4 to 4, making six runs in the first inning and getting only one hit. The DETROIT, Mich.—After pitching a brilliant ball for eight innings, George Dauss, veteran Tiger hurler, weakened in the ninth, Chicago taking him for six runs and the game by the score of 9 to 8. The Tigers went into the ninth one run behind and filled the bases with one out. Derrill Pratt, playing first base for Detroit, who had hit in four consecutive trips to the plate, hit into a double play, ending the game after Thurston had collected Congress for Chicago. ## Kinks o' the Links

How many times has John Ball, the famous English golfer, won the British amateur championship? In what year did he win his first title and when did he annex the last one? Did Ball ever win both the British open and amateur championships in the same year?

John Ball has won the British amateur championship seven times. He secured his first win in 1888 and his seventh victory in 1910. In 1890 Ball won both the open and amateur championships, considered a very extraordinary feat.

Player makes a 20-foot putt that is very accurate. The ball seems certain to drop in, but hangs on the lip of the cup and hesitates for an instant. It seems that the player will have to take another stroke to sink his ball, but as he takes a step toward the ball, which has been hovering on the very edge of the cup, it falls in. Must the ball drop into the cup instantly or does the player still hope to lift it after hesitating the ball falls into the cup?

Very often a ball hesitates on the very brink of the cup. If the ball drops in almost instantly then the player does not need to use another shot to complete the hole. However, the player is not allowed to delay his shot in the hope that his ball may finally fall into the cup.

WILL BLAINE VETO GASOLINE TAX BILL MADISON WONDER

Bill Before the Governor for Four Days Without Any Action so Far

MADISON, Wis.—By The Associated Press.—The fact that Governor Blaine has not vetoed the gasoline tax bill, passed by both houses of the legislature, before him for four days without signing it, is causing some speculation here concerning the possibility of a veto. Members of the highway committee of the legislature, however, say that the governor took part in the drafting of the measure and agreed to its provisions. They are confident that the bill will be signed and go into effect July 1.

Should the gas tax bill become a law, the machinery carrying its provisions into operation are ready to be set in motion through the office of the state oil inspector and secretary of state. Dealers on July 1 would then commence to assess an extra two cents a gallon on motor fuel when purchased for use in automobiles.

Should the bill be vetoed, highway committee members say that they would then prefer to have a graduated license fee measure also killed by executive disapproval. A deficit of approximately $2,000,000 would be incurred, they point out, if the gasoline tax bill is vetoed and the weight tax measure allowed to become a law.

The governor has either to sign or veto the gas tax measure before the middle of this week. In the absence of his signature the proposal will automatically become a law.

LEARN WHILE YOU SLEEP, IS HOPE OF RADIO ATTEMPTS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"Learn while you sleep" will be the routine advertisement of up-to-date educational institutions if the experiments now being conducted by the navy produce results commensurate with the hopes of some of its instructors.

According to an official announcement issued Monday, embryo radio operators at the Pensacola, Fla., air station are to be taught the intricacies of wireless after they have been tucked in their regulation cots. Specially designed receiving sets will be strapped to the ears of the sleepers and throughout the still watches of the night data and formulae will be poured, pushed and pounded into more or less receptive brains, at least as the announcement states.

A skeptical official in the department whose opinion was sought remarked that the process might work in the cases of certain backward pupils who had failed to respond to any scheme employed during their waking hours.

The "Untouchables" of India. The lowest caste of India are known as the "Untouchables," because merely to touch them pollutes a Hindu of a higher caste. In parts of southern India, where the caste system is even more rigid than in the north, the Untouchables are forbidden to walk on certain roads, lest higher castes should be polluted merely by seeing them.

Thus Hinduism is essentially and rigidly aristocratic or theocratic in organization.

DOROTHY DALTON'S NEW PICTURE SCORES

Scoring a decided hit, Dorothy Dalton's new Paramount picture, "Fog Bound," was presented with artistic effect at the Rivoli theater Sunday night. The various situations were packed with drama and thrill, and the popular vocalist was that Miss Dalton seldom has been seen in a more attractive stellar vehicle.

The story deals with the daughter of a United States revenue officer, Gale Brenon, living on an island off the coast of Florida, who falls in love with Roger Wainwright, a wealthy New York man. Brenon is shot and killed during a raid on an inn, and circumstances point to Wainwright as the guilty man, although he is innocent.

When Gale learns that Wainwright killed her father, she is torn by conflicting emotions. David Powell renders efficient support as leading man. The supporting company, including Martha Mansfield, Maurice Costello and other players of ability, is excellent.

A "Torchy" comedy puts a happy finish to a pleasant evening.

STRAND TODAY

To the immaculate dresser and the man who is looking for the latest styles in men's clothing, they have found a novel means of ascertaining what is right for morning, afternoon or evening dress. Instead of studying the well-known men's fashion magazines, the man who takes an interest in his personal appearance has adopted new tactics. They have begun studying the screen and one man is particular. This is Wyndham Standing, who plays the leading male role in "The Lion's Mouse," the feature film attraction at the Strand theater today.

"WOLF LAW" AT THE MAJESTIC

Those hard-to-please theatergoers who object to seeing the same story in different guises on the screen time after time, will be interested in "Wolf Law" at the Majestic theater. It is a Universal photodrama starring Frank Mayo and founded on a thrilling romance by Hugh Pendexter.

Larry Semon, in "The Midnight Cabaret," is also a feature.

"HER FATAL MILLIONS"

IS FULL OF SURPRISES

In her newest Metro starring vehicle, "Her Fatal Millions," which comes to the Casino theater today, Viola Dana plays the role of a girl who posed as a millionaire to prove to an old sweetheart that fortune had smiled on her too. But she went a bit far when she told him she was the wife of the wealthiest man in town, because when her "borrowed" limousine was wrecked and her "borrowed" money lost, Fred took her to her "husband's" home. And then there were complications galore.

Hope is a role that fits the versatile, vivacious little Miss Dana like a glove. It provides her with a rare opportunity to display her distinctive charm and youthful vigor. The story provides plenty of laughs, and thrills, and the dainty little star meets for a woman with an entirely new twist and climax to the triangle theme, which makes it one of the most unusual romances on the screen.

AT THE MAJESTIC TUESDAY

The "Lamp in the Desert," Ethel M. Dell's "best seller," is the attraction booked for the Majestic theater Tuesday and Wednesday.

It is a romantic story of India by a woman whose adventures are legion. In her remarkable story Miss Dell portrays with great strength and dramatic intensity the love of two men

World's Most Exclusive Club

The Jockey Club of London is probably the most exclusive club in the world. It was in 1750 that the club first took authoritative action in racing matters, and since then its code has gradually evolved. But it was not until 1821 that the club excluded the power of "swaying off." Nobody cheats the Jockey Club, and all its magnificent power and influence has been arrogated to itself by itself.

LABOR SHORTAGE SHOWN IN CITIES OF BADGER STATE

Industrial Activity Slackens
While Out-door Work
Shows Increase

MADISON, Wis.—By the Associated Press.—Industrial activity in Wisconsin has slackened since the first of the year boom, while outdoor work has continued to increase, the state industrial commission reported Monday in its monthly survey of employment and industrial conditions.

The labor shortage is shown by the commission reports from the larger cities of the state, due to greater activity in farming, road building and other construction works.

The increase in number of workers engaged in building construction increased 47.2 percent; the increase for railroad construction was 16.7 percent. Farm hands increased 18 percent.

According to the commission survey, the only factory industries showing an increase were food, canning and preserving, 45.7 percent, and brick, tile and cement block manufacturing, 88 percent. Increases in these two lines were seasonal. The metal, wood, leather and textile industries all showed declines.

Average weekly earnings of factory employees are shown to average $24.94 compared with $22.16 a year ago. The cost of living as reported by the national industrial conference board, is shown to have remained stationary during the past three months. Increased purchasing power is said by the commission to be shown by an increased retail sales force numbering eleven percent more than a year ago.

Alaska's Large Reindeer Farm

One of the largest reindeer farms in the world is at Nome, Alaska. It extends over a territory of 600,000 acres and exports say that it is to this territory that America will look for her future meat supply. The reindeer is a hardy animal, grazes all through the year and requires no shelter.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK—Price changes were decidedly mixed at the opening of today's stock market. Pressure was placed on the market by the news that the United States Steel Corporation had agreed to a plan of reorganization, which would result in the company being controlled by a group of financiers.

The market was further affected by the news that the Federal Reserve Bank had raised its discount rate to 6 percent, which was expected to lead to a tightening of credit.

Despite these factors, the market showed some strength in the afternoon, with several key stocks advancing.

The closing prices were as follows: U. S. Steel, 48 1/2; American Steel, 48 1/2; Republic Steel, 48 1/2; and others.

The market was expected to be more active in the coming days, as investors awaited further news on the reorganization of U. S. Steel.

HARDINGS NOT TO RETURN TO MARION WHEN TERM EXPIRES

Little Ohio City to be Denied the Honor of Being the Home of an Ex-president

PRESIDENT HAS LONG PLANNED TO MAKE HOME AT CAPITOL

Sale of Interest in Marion Star Indicates Removal from City

BY ROBERT T. SMALL
(Special Correspondent of the Tribune)
Copyright, 1925.
WASHINGTON, June 24.—Marion, Ohio, which has risen to international fame as the home of a president of the United States is to be denied the added boast of being the home of an ex-president.

Mr. Harding's announcement this week that he had sold his majority interest in the Marion Star is accepted here as confirmation of earlier reports that when his tour of duty at the White House is over, he will not return to live again in the thriving little city which was the mecca of so many political pilgrims in the fall of 1920.

Naturally, Mr. Harding's stay at the White House is still indefinite. His term expires a year from next March 4, but the president and some of his closest political friends are nursing the idea that perhaps a second term is possible if not probable. Be that as it may, it is virtually settled that when he leaves the White House—either in 1925 or 1926, Warren G. Harding will follow the example of Woodrow Wilson and become a resident of Washington, D. C. A year or two of travel in Europe may precede the settling down process, in the national capital, but in none of the details of his future life does President Harding contemplate more than occasional visits to the folks "back home" in Marion.

Home Not Yet Sold

The president, however, has not yet sold his home on Mount Vernon avenue where the famous front porch campaign was conducted and later when the conference of the "best minds" were held. A Marion contractor is occupying the house under a long term lease.

Mr. Harding's plan to make Washington his future home was reached when he first was elected to the senate. For six or eight years prior to his nomination he had been but little in Marion. The wider life of the national capital was far more congenial to him. But it was impossible to conduct a presidential campaign from "voteless" Washington, especially at a time when the White House was in the hands of the enemy, so Mr. Harding after the nominating convention at Chicago, quickly opened up the Marion house and there made his successful stand for the highest office in the land. Of course if he should run again, the campaign in 1924 would be conducted from the vantage point of the White House.

Grows Away From Marion

Marion folks have felt for some time that the Hardings were growing away from them; that the newer associations of the capital were displacing the old home ties. Marion has never boasted a country club or golf course, and while Mr. Harding was campaigning in 1920 he found it necessary to motor all the way to Mansfield whenever he desired an afternoon's recreation on the links. Even at Mansfield the course was hardly to the liking of a man who had become accustomed to Chevy Chase and Columbia here in Washington.

There must have been a real tug at the Harding heart strings, however, when the papers were signed, handing control of the Marion Star to other hands. The Star has been the foundation of the Harding fortunes, both political and financial. Many of the oldest associations and traditions of the Harding family center about the paper.

President Harding's happiest reminiscences have to do with his early struggles on the Star—the hustle to get the money to meet the payroll each week, and the happy week ends in Cleveland or Columbus with whatever might be left over—or even "held out"—until there could be new collections on the following Monday. Then, too, there was the toil of Mrs. Harding herself on the Star, how she took hold of and built up the circulation department when the hired hands seemed about to fail. It was Mrs. Harding who even counted the pennies brought in by the newsboys.

Sell Share in Paper

There has been no intimation of what the president may have received for his stock in the Star, but it is known that the paper was giving him an income not so very far behind his salary as the chief magistrate of the land. Based on its money making power, there is every reason to believe that the sale has brought to the president a sum which makes him easily the richest man thus far to occupy the White House.

There are few however who believe that this consideration influenced the deal. The president has never been a believer in the absentee ownership of newspapers. With no intention, therefore, of returning to Marion to live, the sale of the Star was inevitable.

AMERICAN LEGION LAUNCHES AMERICANIZATION PROGRAM IN WISCONSIN JULY FOURTH

MILWAUKEE.—The Fourth of July has been selected as the day to start the campaign of Americanization that the American Legion is to conduct in Wisconsin during the next year. It was stated by Americanization Officer Vilas P. Wilever of Racine, in charge of the Wisconsin district for the national Legion council.

The day will not be characterized by speeches, exercises and wind-jamming, but will consist of what Legion members claim will be the most important automobile racing meet held in Wisconsin this year. The program, now being completed, will be made up of contests between the star drivers of the Badger state, with a few national drivers of cars and motorcycles to lend a thrill by exhibition sprints.

The big meeting is to be held at State Fair Park, Milwaukee. The Wisconsin automobile commission has offered the grounds and track to the Legion free of cost for the event. Governor John J. Blaine is at the head of the general committee which will stand as sponsor for the movement.

The funds yielded by the Fourth of July races are to be applied upon the cost of a Legion-Americanization drive, which will open the Wisconsin State Fair of August 27. At that time there will be engaged as many of the Legion hands in the state as can be secured by payment of expenses with the money obtained by means of the race meeting.

Americanization Officer Wilever will be in charge of the program for the Legion day at the fair. As it will be opening day there will be some 50,000 children admitted free, and the program is to be directed largely to these children. General Hahn of the 32nd division will be invited to attend. National Commander Owsley of the American Legion will be asked to formally head the occasion.

One of the features of the day will be continuous concerts by bands which will confine their program to musical numbers which were popular during the war days.

After a conference with Commander J. Ryan Duffy it was decided that the Fourth of July proceedings should be under the management of a committee consisting of Mr. Wilever, William Wadewitz and Max Zirbes, who volunteered to assume the work of handling the affair.

It was further agreed that Oliver E. Remy, secretary of the state fair board, should handle the details of preparation, without compensation, and that a committee of prominent automobile men would be organized to supervise the character of the program. It is probable that George W. Browne, president of the Milwaukee Retail Dealers' association will be head of that committee.

A committee of 100 prominent men of Milwaukee and Wisconsin will be announced later as sponsors of the day of racing.

JERSEY COW MAKES GOOD BUTTER FAT RECORD FOR YEAR

Massachusetts, following the lead of Oregon and Ohio, has produced a Jersey cow with over 1,100 pounds of butter fat for a year, making her world's champion aged cow of the Channel Island breeds.

Groff's Constance was bred by U. G. Groff, a veteran breeder of Jerseys, and developed and tested by his son, Charles W. Groff, on the parental homestead, Azotok Farm, about two and one-half miles from Amherst, the seat of the Massachusetts agricultural college.

Beginning her record on June 1st, 1922, Constance on three milkings per day, standing in an ordinary box stall and braving the rigors of one of the most severe winters in the history of New England, had produced in 365 days, 17,942 pounds of milk, containing 130.09 pounds butterfat with an average test for the year of 6.30 per cent.

RECORD ATTENDANCE ENROLLED AT U. W. SUMMER SESSION

MADISON, Wis.—The University of Wisconsin summer session opened Monday with an enrollment estimated at more than 5,000—a record breaking attendance. Thousands of students, from all parts of the country, had registered.

The university summer session is rapidly assuming the proportions of the regular session. Madison's lakes and its attractive summer surroundings attract students, as well as the educational facilities of the state's greatest institution.

MAY REQUISITION COAL
DUESSELDORF.—General De Goutte issued an order declaring the inter-allied commission of control in the Ruhr has the power to requisition all stocks of coal in mines, factories and industries to insure delivery for the reparations account and coal taxes.

Wolves raise unusually large families; sometimes 13 pups are born in one litter.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best, many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at any drug store; it is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure and ask for "Mulsified."

FIREWORKS LEAD TO SPECTACULAR FIRE AT MOLINE

MOLINE, Ill.—A small boy lighting a firecracker caused a $150,000 fire in the Flisk & Loosely department store, which resulted in several injuries and threw the Saturday night shopping throngs into a panic at the most spectacular fire ever witnessed here.

One woman and her baby and five boys trapped by the flames, were rescued by firemen and a spectator. Two lads who crawled out on an electric sign were brought to the grounds by the heroic work of Fred Giersch, a real estate man.

One of the firemen broke his ankle. A fire truck smashed into two automobiles and injured a bystander.

The blaze caused a barrage of pyrotechnics at the fireworks counter in the store. Women dragged their children back and forth in an attempt to beat down the human barrier which blocked the nearest avenue of escape. Policeman Ted Anderson took charge of the crowds and averted a stampede by his presence of mind.
